Christmas Party Games for Teens

These party games can be used as individual competitions, or combined for team competitions. Print out a copy for each player or team, and assign a time limit for each activity.

Need a fun way to divide kids into teams?

- *decide how many teams you want
- *determine how many kids will be in each team
- *choose a Christmas song for each team
- *write the song names on slips of paper (the # of slips will correspond to the # of kids in the group)
- *fold slips and place in a bowl
- *tell each kid to draw a slip and start humming their song - they must search for their team members by finding kids who are humming the same tune

Some suggestions for team events:

- *Do not let kids look at game sheets until the clock starts
- *Have the order of events written out as a reminder, or have a table set up for each activity so the team can move from table to table
- *Create a good mix of printable games and hands-on games
- *Decide whether teams have to work together, or whether they have to do it relay-style with one person per activity

CONTENTS

Find Your Party Elf Name

Get the party started by choosing a wacky elf name. You can just use first names, or go crazy and add in middle and last for an epic elf name.

Name that Christmas Movie

Can you guess which movie contains each famous quote?

Here We Come a Caroling

Can you name a well-known christmas carol just by looking at one line?

The 12 Days of Christmas

Add up all of the items in all of the days to find out how many gifts were given.

Example: A partridge was given each day, so there are 12 total.

Draw the Birth of Jesus

Draw the nativity story with stick figures, starting with the angel's visit to Mary. The more details that are included, the higher the points.
